Dear Mr. Editor:

For the benefit of those who might like to hear somethign of what went on at the March for Victory in Vietnam in Washington last Saturday I am writing this. I was certain that the only way I would be able to find out what went on would be for me to be there, and I am most thankful that I was able to be a part of that wonderful, Christian, patriotic, march. Samuel "Junior" Doss and I made the trip together and no doubt we were the only ones from this part of Virginia. The march formed in lines of ten wide and three paces apart. Samuel and I fell into what looked like the most lively part of the march and had ourselves a real ball. In the line with us was a man with an accordian who played patriotic music and christian hymns to which we all sang. In the line ahead of us were several young girls who had tremendous voices. They screamed and hollered for about the entire time of the march and their voices just didn't give out. By the time we got to the Washington Monument my voice was just a hoarse whisper. Along the march we would see a few hippies with yellow flowers in their buttonholes. They would shout "Peace now". With our young friends leading us we would all shout back at them, "Victory!", "Victory!" When we passed policemen who lined the avenue one person (usually the young girl with the big voice) would shout: "Whom do we support?". Everyone would answer: "The police". Then she would say, "Who?" Theanswer "The police". Then she would send up with: "I can't hear you!", and the marchers would really roar: "The police". Do you think for a second that the police didn't appreciate this march? The only marches they had ever covered found the marchers calling them pigs and fuzz. These marchers showed them respect and honor and they really appreciated it! You could see it in their grins when we shouted "The police" and in the cheery wave of their hands. We should appreciate our policemen - they are the only group we have between the law abiding and the law breakers.

When we got to the Monument area the people gathered all the way from the Monument to the west to the speakers stand and on either side. People had all sorts of equipment to use. Some had chairs, others blankets, which they spread on the ground some were in wheel chairs, others crutches, others one-legged stools. Everybody had signs and flags. Samuel and I had three flags and a sign which read, "Why quit when we can win?"

We saw only one Viet Cong flag. A man with a sign which reads: "Make yourself feel better. Wipe your feet on the Viet Cong flag", was dragging a Viet Cong flag on the ground. Many people took the opportunity to wipe their feet on it.

There were people from all over the world at this march; men from Korea and refugees from most of the Communist countries of Europe, including Russia. They wanted to see America win in Vietnam and also to see their countries in Europe liberated from the Communists, as well. I think about all of the service groups were represented: the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans, etc. I saw a few groups of about three each of hippies and flower children on the grounds but they didn't bother anyone. The wire service report in The Lynchburg News Sunday said that about 200 hippies were in a group there and tried to disrupt the speeches from time to time, I was there and they didn't make even a ripple upon the waves, so to speak, but if they numbered 200, our group of Marchers must have numbered a couple of millions.

The speeches were climaxed by a 20 minute oration by George by a 20 minute oration by Georgia's Governor, the Hon. Lester Maddox. I hope to be able to get this speech in either printed form or tape recording and if so, I will make it available to any group which is patriotic enough to want to hear it.

The speeches lasted from 2 to 5 p.m. A little mist fell around 3:15 p.m., but fortunately it didn't bother many people. The weather was cloudy and it was some chilly, but it didn't dampen the spirits of those attending. The rally ended at 5 p.m. with a prayer which followed everybody turning towards the White House and shouting five times: "We want victory in Vietnam". Then we headed for our bus and the ride back to Richmond where we picked up my car and headedfor home. Tired, but feeling all clean inside that we had done the one and only thing offered to patriotic Americans to do in the way of letting our president know how we feel about our winning the war in Vietnam, supporting our police, putting prayer and Bible-reading back in school, keeping sex education out of our schools, not doing business with the communists, and freedom of religion in our schools. The Communists have said that they will bury us, and they have a plan to take us over by 1976, but if our country does fail to them, at least two men from Appomattox can say that they did the one thing that was offered to them to do to try to awaken our country to the danger. I am proud I was able to go to D. C. and participate in the march. I have three U S flags which I took down Pennsylvania Avenue and intend to keep them as a symbol of what the march meant to me.

There can be no doubt that Gov. Maddox spoke the truth when he said that we would have had 2 million people at the march if we had gotten the publicity that the Moratorium crowd got last November. Did you know about the march? Did you see any kind of television giving you news about the developments of the march as they progressed? Did you know that Dr. McIntire began his radio crusade for this march last November? Did you see over a 30 second account of the march during any news program Saturday? Channel 13 had a 2 1/2 minute report on the Lynchburg march honoring the second anniversary of Martin L. King's death on their 6 p.m. news Monday evening. Did you notice the length of coverage given the placing of a wreath on King's tomb by his wife in Saturday night's TV news at 11 p.m.? And of the march which went up to the place where he was shot in Memphis, Tenn.? The murder of any man is a terrible thing, but let's put things in their proper perspective. The March in Washington Saturday was one which every patriotic American should have supported. Yet the free press and news media in this country chose to give it only the slightest possible coverage. What is wrong with our press when it gives full coverage to everything, no matter how small, which undermines the country and tears it to pieces. You would think they were on the other side. And I marvel also with this observation that if the press and news media are on our side in this country, who needs any enemies?

Respectfully,
William C. Hubbard
Appomattox, Virginia

Please let me add this. If you would like to hear the other side of what is going on in this country, how the World Council of Churches and the National Council of Churches are leading this country and the world into the ecumenical apostasy, how the Communists are being coddled and given every privilege to tear down our Democracy, how our armed forces are being handcuffed in Vietnam (Did you know in many instances they have been ordered not to fire until fired upon); how the National or World Council of Churches has a privileged sanctuary, in front of the White House, to carry on a 75-day vigil, and threatened to arrest Dr. McIntire when he came up with a counter vigil; how the New English Bible just offered for sale butchers the Bible, and along with the Revised Standard and Good News For Modern Man Bibles, denies the Virgin birth, the literal truth of the Bible, denies the power of the blood by substituting death, although the Bible says "Without the shedding of blood, there is no remission of sins", that the basic text of Good News For Modern Man was translated by Dr. Robert G. Bratcher from the Greek New Testament published by United Bible Societies in 1966, and describes itself as "genuinely ecumenical, hailed by representatives of every church from Baptists to Jesuit Father Abbott of Rome's Christian Unity Secretariat, who describes it as 'a masterpiece of modern study'"; that the Revised Standard Version is the National Council of Churches official copyrighted Bible. If you want to hear what is going on in our country today, you can do so by turning your radio up near the top of your dial each morning, five days a week, and listening to Dr. Carl McIntire and the Twentieth Century Reformation Hour on station WKOK, between Blackstone and Kenbridge.
